

Let's have some fun?

“Practice and repetition lead us to perfection, or at least, closer enough”.

---

Here are the answers

How long has she been missing?

The answer is: Almost two decades.

When did Steve McCurry take this girl's first photo?

The answer is: Seventeen years ago.

When he shot her photo, the girl was a ...

The answer is: refugee.

When did the world's attention turn to Afghanistan?

The answer is: In 2001.

What did McCurry do for weeks when he returned to Afghanistan?

The answer is: He roamed the streets looking for information about the girl.

Why was his search harder than he thought?

The answer is: Because grown women wore veils which hid their faces.

What result did McCurry get before having to leave?

The answer is: He couldn't find anything about her.

Why must a female associate producer meet the woman who might be the Afghan girl?

The answer is: Because local custom dictated that only a woman could see her.

How did they know that the woman was the Afghan girl?

The answer is: A new technology called 'iris mapping' was used.

How many children did the woman, Sharbat Gula, have?

The answer is: She had three children.

What message did McCurry say her photo sends to the modern world?

The answer is: A message of courage and hope.

Fab Silva